

Training faithful servants of God's word in Hong Kong

Those who study and serve at the Lutheran Theological Seminary of Hong Kong (LTS) know the importance of biblical education and training, "so that everyone who belongs to God may be proficient, equipped for every good work" (2 Timothy 3:17). Here are examples of how LTS builds theological proficiency and lives out its mission statement: "On the foundation of the Bible, training faithful servants of God's word."

The Lutheran Theological Seminary of Hong Kong

- An Indonesian woman who came to work as a maid in Hong Kong was beaten and held captive for six months. She managed to run away and gratefully joined 30 other women in a small Christian shelter which serves as a home and surrogate family. An LTS student from Hong Kong helps organize this shelter.
- Another LTS student lived for 10 years in a refugee camp. When he returns home to Cambodia, he will visit remote country parishes on a motorcycle, witnessing to the deep reconciliation and healing made possible in Christ.
- A graduate student at LTS aims to help develop a culturally appropriate and dynamic program of interdenominational Bible study and outreach for congregations in Myanmar, where Christians are a tiny minority.

The Evangelical Lutheran Church of Hong Kong (ELCHK) operates the seminary (www.lts.edu). In its 50-year history, LTS has grown to be a primary center of theological education.
